THEODORE TILTON'S LECTURE ON "THE MASTER MOTIVES."

We have heretofore given a brief summary of Tilton's lecture on "The Problem of Life." We now present a summary of his other lecture "The Master Motives," as delivered in San Francisco on Tuesday evening. The Bulletin in speaking of it says:

Seldom, if ever, has a San Francisco audience listened to such eloquent oratory as flowed in an uninterrupted and silvery stream from the lips of Mr. Tilton—certainly not since the days of Thomas Starr King. Such elegance of diction, such flights of imagination, such subtlety of thought, such apt metaphor are seldom combined in the same public speaker.

The master motives which governed the actions of mankind were classed as follows: Money, fashion, vanity, ambition, hatred, love and religion. Each of these motives was pictured in all its varied forms. Of money getting, Mr. Tilton said: The farmer sows his seed, the miner sinks his shaft deep into the bowels of the earth, the merchant looking towards the Golden Gate sees his ships spreading their sails to the four quarters of the earth, and for what? Money. One man says I am a mechanic, another a merchant, another a musician, another a professor—there is one pursuit common to all, and that is money. In former days a man was gauged by his lands, by his lineage, by his acts; but all that is changed now, and he is judged by his dollars and cents. The apostle said, "Silver and gold have I none." He might not earn his apostleship today were he not possessed of these prime essentials to respect. The Greeks had thirty thousand objects of idolatry and they erected a statue to each. We have 30,000 objects of idolatry, and Washington Irving has well said they are all repressed in a single statue—the almighty dollar. It was said that whatever Midas touched turned into gold. The opposition is reversed here in America to-day, for whatever turns into gold is what touches the American. Even religion is not free from the money-getting mania; it associates itself with money. Money is a power both for good and evil. It builds cities and equips the armies by which they are overthrown; it steals like a sunbeam into the hut of poverty, at the same time cuts the throat of the traveler upon the highway; it rears the altars of affection over the graves of our beloved dead; it steals like a hyena into their sepulchers to rob them of their shrouds; it is God and the devil both in one. We ought to agree that the motive for money getting should be placed under a powerful discipline. Open the Great Book and we read therein that "He who maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent." If you should go into the Merchants' Exchange of this city and read this and other like applicable texts spread upon its walls, what would you say? You would say it is impossible to apply these texts to the usages of that institution. Be not too sure. These texts have endured for centuries; they have outlived the ravages of time, and proved themselves inherent with a living fire. If the man of the present should adopt the methods of the buccaneer and of Robin Hood and his merry men for the purpose of acquiring money, he would be denounced. What then shall we do? Shall we gamble? No, for what do we read in our morning paper? That the Captain of the watch has pounced upon the gamblers. Yet in other days gambling was fashionable. Noblemen, gentlemen, soldiers and even the clergy gambled. The lover gambled for a kiss from the ripe lips of his mistress. If humanity now condemns the practice of gambling, will not the same moral force sweep from the streets the pernicious system of stock gambling now so prevalent—also, too prevalent—in your midst? The tendency of the times is to get rich without work. The stock sharp takes the lyre of Orpheus and sets the bulls and bears a dancing, and says, "Pay me, the piper!" Ask of each ringing dollar in this city its history—how it came into life. Some of them will tell you they represent the tears of widows, the bartered honor of a man, the robbery of a ring; and the thousand of other stories which you would be told I need not now relate. Benjamin Franklin said the road to wealth is as plain as the road to market. Yes, it is the good old-fashioned road of honest toil. We sometimes say that the day of miracles is passed. There is one miracle still existing—the miraculous result of hard labor that is accomplished by the dripping sweat of the brow. The value of money is not what it buys, but what it costs. Some men's money costs them too much; others too little. A man who makes his money at the expense of his health and honor pays too much; he that gets his money by lucky hits pays too little. If he pays too much he cheats himself. If he pays too little he cheats mankind. The golden mean between these two extremes was well expressed in the prayer of Agar, who said, "Give me neither poverty nor riches." If a man would bring Arcadia let him abolish poverty and wealth. But Arcadia will never come.

Of love, he spoke, not as a sentiment but as a motive. He paid a glowing tribute John Stuart Mill's dedication of his work on Liberty to his dead wife. A man, said the lecturer, who could write of his wife as Mill has riches and royalty richer than the mines of Golconde or the pride of all the thrones of Europe. The home of a man who has sacrificed all this is a Paradise Lost. Love survives neglect, betrayal, ingratitude, mortality, nay, even time itself, for it declares, "I am the resurrection and the life." Love becomes the good genius of humanity. It gives strength to the weak; it has power to endure and achieve.

On the subject of religion, which Mr. Tilton employed as the key-note in the structure of motives controlling mankind, he regarded it as the highest but the most neglected sentiment animating the human heart. He preached a brief sermon to the clergy on their mode of preaching. He represented that he had visited during the past twelve months every State in the Union excepting Texas, but was compelled to confess that California was the most irreligious of all. Most Californians, he said, are content with the Frenchman's prayer, which is: "O God (if there is a God), save my soul—if I have a soul." His own views, belief and faith in Christianity he eloquently expressed. Mr. Tilton was frequently applauded by his audience. The lecture was a highly moral and intellectual treat.

THE New York Stockholder, in an article on gold mining in Georgia, figures up the cost of extracting and reducing 60 tons of rock, which is so ridiculously small that it seems as if it would almost pay to mine and work the very walls of the veins. Here are the figures: Six miners at 80 cents each per day, $4.80; one foreman at the mine, $1.25; six men at the mill at 80 cents each, $7.80; two foremen at mill at $1.25, $2.50; cost of water power, $2.10. Total, $15.75. Just think of it, men going into a mine and working for the pittance of 80 cents a day.

THE Washington Home at Boston, for the care of inebriates, contained 317 patients at the first of the year. Of these 177 were married men and 140 single; 200 were Americans and 57 foreigners, and 110 were mechanics, 85 clerks, 13 merchants, 19 lawyers and 2 physicians. The average number of days each patient has remained is 21. Three months are considered necessary to receive the full benefits of the institution.

A FRENCH machinist has discovered that by keeping his turning tools constantly wetted with petroleum he was able to cut metals and alloys with them, although when the tools were used without the oil their edges were turned and dulled. The hardest steel can be turned easily if the tool is thus wet with a mixture of two parts of petroleum with one part of turpentine.

A MAN who was recently sitting on the banks of the Rockcastle river, Kentucky, quietly fishing, and with no one near, was nearly frightened to death by the sudden appearance of a large man, with head of enormous size, coming to the surface of the water as he drew in his line. It afterwards proved to be the body of an Italian who had been drowned a few days before.

A NASHVILLE bank robber burrowed under the street for five days, and at length came up in the coal vault of a beer saloon, three doors away from the bank, and bit himself in eleven places with the most uncompromising dog he ever tried to catch. The next time he attempts any mining operations he will take a practical engineer along.

GRANT'S OVATION.

Grant is receiving a royal welcome on the other side of the ocean. The Irishmen of Queenstown could not do too much for him, and in England the people flock to see him, the cities are gay with bunting, and the hospitality of every place he stops is extended. In a day or two he dines with the Prince of Wales, and the Dukes, Earls and Lords are pressing him with invitations. The Queen herself will delight to do him honor, and altogether Grant's visit to England promises to be the most important international event since the Prince of Wales' visit to America. Grant has said his movements could not be foreshadowed with certainty. He would remain a guest of Minister Pierrepont during his stay in London. He intended to run over to France for the purpose of visiting Minister Washburne incognito. On his return he will visit Scotland and Ireland, and then proceed to Denmark to pass some time with a sister of the wife of Minister Kruger. Thence he will go to Sweden and Norway, afterwards to Russia, visiting Switzerland late in Summer and Spain during Winter. It is safe to say his tour will be an international event of the highest character, the monarchs of all nations evidently being disposed to make his tour a succession of ovations. After a while he will return to us. In a few years perhaps he will again be called to the White House.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The continual reduction of the public debt is the best evidence of the permanency of our country. Month after month the announcement is made of some reduction. To the best of our recollection there has been but a single month for many years past which showed an increase. The decrease for May is something remarkable, being six millions and a half making an aggregate reduction for 11 months of the fiscal year of about $35,000,000, which includes the ten million received from the Geneva Award Fund and covered into the Treasury.

GRANT'S DINNERS.

The telegraph furnishes the following as the list of diners in store for Grant. We hope he will prove equal to all emergencies:

Ex-President Grant will dine with the Duke of Wellington, June 2d. The Duke, in tendering the invitation, said it seemed to him to be a fit thing that General Grant's first dinner in London should be at Apsley House, with the Duke of Wellington. A subsequent invitation from Earl Beaconsfield, for the same day, was deferred to a date not yet fixed. A reception will be given the general at Minister Pierrepont's residence on the 6th of June, and a dinner and reception at Lord Houghton's on the 6th. He will attend the Ascot races on the 12th of June; on the 16th, he will dine at Kensington Palace, with the Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne; on the 21st at Minister Pierrepont's, with the Prince of Wales, and on the 28th at Pierrepont's, with the Duke of Cambridge. Other invitations to dinner by distinguished persons were not accepted on account of previous engagements. The following invitations have been accepted, but the day not fixed: To dinner with Earl Derby, to dine with the Queen and attend the Queen's concert and ball at Buckingham Palace, and to dinner with the Lord Mayor at Guildhall. The Prince of Wales has arranged to receive General Grant at Marlborough House immediately after his arrival. It is understood that the Prince will also give a dinner in his honor, but no day has been fixed.

SENATOR MORGAN of Alabama has written a letter protesting against the prosecution of those who aided in the shameful frauds by which Shelby (Democrat) defeated Haralson (Republican) in a largely-Republican district in Alabama. Haralson has been threatened with death if he returns to prosecute his case in court. Morgan says if the President expects support from Southern Democrats he must not countenance a continuation of the prosecution in the United States Courts.

GOVERNOR CULLUM of Illinois, has vetoed the bill to make silver coin a legal tender in that State, giving as his reasons that he does not believe it a wise measure in its financial aspect, nor constitutional.

A TIDAL WAVE.

DESTRUCTION ON THE WEST COAST OF SOUTH AMERICA.

Towns and Cities Washed Away—Hundreds of Lives Lost—Immense Damage to Shipping.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Advices from Panama say that on the 10th of May a tidal wave washed the State of Guerrero in Mexico.

The following particulars of the tidal wave on the South Pacific coast have been received: Callao was visited on the morning of the 10th by a species of wave or rather a gradual upheaval of the sea, which caused serious damage and exceeding alarm. The docks and piers were the principal sufferers, together with some stores along the shore line, which were completely carried away by the water. Vessels made fast and lying alongside the outer walls of the docks were lifted fully eight feet by the upheaval, but were not damaged. Most of the steamers riding at anchor in the bay slipped their cables, fearing further damage. The United States storeship Onward left her anchorage, the officer in command evidently remembering the fate of her predecessor, the Fredonia, in the great tidal wave at Arica in 1863. A quantity of merchandise, temporarily stored on the docks from ships in discharge, was ruined by the water. On shore the greatest consternation was apparent, many families flying for safety to the high grounds back of the town. At 10 o'clock in the forenoon all danger seemed past. The sea was still somewhat agitated but gradually resumed its ordinary tranquility.

At Molleco 300 feet of the railway running along the shore was destroyed by the wave. At Ilo the town and railroad were seriously damaged, although no loss of life is reported.

Beyond Mallendo the cable is uninterrupted. Much anxiety prevails as to the fate of Arica and Iquique. The steamer Santa Rosa left Arica on the evening of the 9th. She reports that at the moment of getting under way she experienced the shock of an earthquake and saw a tidal wave setting towards the shore.

At Arequipa a strong shock was felt, but the Prefect telegraphs that no damage was inflicted on the city.

From the south no other intelligence has been received as yet. The fact that the cable is not working leads to the belief that some great calamity may have befallen the southern part. At the guano deposits of Pabillon, Depica and Guatillos, where from 80 to 100 ships are loading, the catastrophe must have been immense.

The Panama Star has additional intelligence showing the extent of devastation. The steamer John Elder arrived at Callao from Valparaiso on the 13th, and reports a destructive tidal wave at Callao and ports to the north thereof. It was known to have extended as far south as the northern boundary of Chile, but how much further is not known, as communication by cable has been interrupted. The Elder reports the almost complete destruction of Antofagasta, Iquique, Arica, Tambo, Depica, Pabillon, Guatillos, and Ilo. The destruction of life and property was owing entirely to the frightful upheaval and ingress of the sea.

A gentleman arrived by the Trujillo states that the flourishing town of Iquique, the principal port for nitrate shipments, is left as complete a ruin now as it was after the frightful earthquake and inundation of 1868. At Arica the sea washed over the town to the hill back of the church and destroyed much valuable property. The wreck of the United States steamer Watercress, which was carried inland a couple of miles by the tidal wave of 1868, was again floated and carried a mile or two further up the coast. The lower part of Antofagasta, which is a part of the celebrated Caracoles mining district in Bolivia, is reported completely destroyed. The smelting, and other works, near the shore were all swept away. The shipping at Pabillon, Depica, and the guano deposits suffered severely, and some half a dozen fine vessels are reported ashore, complete wrecks. In some places the sea is stated to have risen over sixty feet. The meager and unsatisfactory reports render it impossible to form any fair estimate of the result of this terrible visitation, but making all due allowance for exaggerated statements, we cannot but believe that the loss of life and property was enormous. We may at any moment receive further particulars by way of Valparaiso and the transanden telegraph and the Brazilian cable to Europe. Between 600 and 800 lives are said to have been lost.

The observance of Decoration Day was more general, and on a more elaborate scale in New York and other cities of the North and East, than has heretofore characterized that anniversary. President and Mrs. Hayes strewed the graves of dead soldiers at Arlington with flowers supplied by themselves. Among the speakers at the decoration services in Indianapolis was Senator Morton.

At Eureka on Sunday night last John Hamilton and W. B. Barton, two prisoners confined in the county jail, made their escape. They caught Under Sheriff Joe Nelson off his guard, locked him up in the jail and quietly walked off.

THE proceedings at law to determine the ownership of the bullion found by the boy Ryan and Constable Lester, in an old tunnel in Silver City, two or three weeks ago, have been taken to the United States Circuit Court at Carson.

HARES is in favor of remonetizing silver, but under such conditions as will not shake the public credit. He does not believe in the justice of making the principal and interest of our debt payable in silver.

THE whole number of children in Gold Hill of school age will foot up over 1,400—a gain of 100 over last year.

CROZIER'S DEATH WARRANT.—The death warrant of R. H. Crozier, signed and sealed, has been delivered to the Sheriff. The day named for the execution of the unfortunate man is Friday, June 2d. It is not probable that the judgment of the District Court will then be executed, as the case has been appealed to the Supreme Court by Crozier's attorney, A. W. Fisk.—Silver State.
